PLANNING FOR DEDICATIONS

Gettysburg Monuments Commission will Likely Have Three New Statues Dedicated Early in Spring with Fitting Ceremonies.

At a meeting of the Gettysburg Monument Commission being held in Philadelphia to-day it is expected that the dedication of the Hays, Humphreys and Geary monuments will be taken under consideration and some of the details of the ceremonies worked out.

The bases for the three monuments have been placed, the tablets have been cast, and one of the duties of the commission at its meeting to-day will be to approve the life size model of General Hays which has now been finished. The work is to be pushed right along to completion and it is expected that all of the memorials will be in place in the very near future.

The commission, in discussing the probable time for the dedication of the monuments, at first considered Memorial Day, 1915 as an appropriate date but it is said that this has been given up and that some time in April will be fixed instead. All three of the dedications will be held on one day and it will be possible to make quite an elaborate occasion out of them provided the Commission is willing to go to the trouble to make such arrangements.

It is now believed that the current session of the Virginia legislature will provide sufficient funds to allow the completion of their State monument. The figures for the base have been finished for some time and, all that remains to be done is the equestrian statue of General Lee. The original law for the erection of the monument provided that the expense should be made in payments covering a period of five years. All of the work done up to this time has been paid for, so that it is the plan to get an appropriation which will meet the remainder of the cost.

Measures have been taken to secure an appropriation in Ohio for a State monument at Gettysburg and, upon the convening of the next legislature in that state, a bill providing for such memorial will, in all probability, be introduced.

Ground has been reserved at the Peach Orchard for many years for the memorial to General Sickles and it is likely that before long New York State will make an appropriation for that purpose.

WAR TIMES DANCE

Poverty Function Given by College Fraternity Friday Night.

A "hard times" dance was given by the Phi Delta Theta fraternity of college in their lodge Friday evening. Costumes of hosts and guests typified the poverty alleged to result from a long continued war and many of them appeared in "rags." The house was elaborately decorated. An improvised ceiling of autumn leaves was penetrated by a score of small red and green light bulbs. Corn fodder lined the walls and Japanese and pumpkin lanterns added to the lighting scheme. The college orchestra played for the dancing.

The guests included, Mrs. Barr, Altoona; Prof. and Mrs. Shipperd, Mrs. Sheely, Mrs. McDonald, Miss Lillian Kissinger, Miss Amy Swope, Miss Zita Ramer, Miss Grace Ramer, Miss Margaret Kendlehart, Miss Lorna Weaver, Miss Evangeline Sieber, Miss Lillian Ring, Miss Virginia Tudor, Miss Ruth Faber, Miss Dorothy Zane, Gettysburg; Miss Lorette Sills; Baltimore; and Miss Pauline Folmer, Hanover.

ANOTHER STORY

November Joe is the Latest Novel Given Times Readers.

The Times announces the beginning today of another serial, "November Joe." The story is of a different type from those which have appeared in these columns in recent months and will be refreshing on account of its novel character. It will doubtless be as popular as the others which have preceded it. Page four today and each day thereafter until it is completed. Do not miss the first installment.

FIGHTING SHY OF LARGE SALARIES

Only Eight Adams County Teachers outside of the High Schools are Paid More than Law Requires, Follow School Code.

Aside from those employed in the various borough high schools there are only eight Adams County teachers who receive more than the minimum salary allowed by law. This fact is disclosed by the current issue of the School Bulletin issued by County Superintendent Roth.

Of the 220 teachers in the county, 110 receive $50 a month and 85 are paid $40 a month. The School Code provides that no less than $40 may be paid to any regular teacher, while those who have taught two years and have any certificate higher than provisional may demand $50. This also applies to normal school graduates.

As would naturally be expected, Gettysburg pays the highest salaries. W. A. Burgoon, supervising principal of the local schools receives $166.66 a month while other members of the High School faculty receive, $95, $90, $75 and less a month. Only one teacher outside of Gettysburg gets $100 and that is Prof. Roy D. Knouse, principal of the Littlestown school.

Of the eight teachers in the county who do not teach in high schools and get more than the minimum salary three are in the Gettysburg schools, three in Conewago township, one in Liberty township, and one in Biglerville.

The minimum salary of $40 or $50, according to the training and experience of the teacher, has done much to provide the county with a more efficient corps of teachers, yet even now the profession is far from being crowded for every year Superintendent Roth has about a half dozen schools for which there is some difficulty in securing teachers. These schools are not always the same, so that the difficulty comes not from conditions there but rather from lack of sufficient teachers. All, however, have always been accommodated.

This condition is felt not alone in Adams County but is reported also from other sections of the State, the teaching profession not drawing so many as might be expected. The losses through marriage and to other professions are great, so that each new incoming class is required to fill vacancies.

The cost of maintaining the county schools here remains about the same from year to year and few districts show any material change in the tax rate. In the districts where there are parochial schools there is frequently required no school tax at all, the state appropriation being sufficient to maintain the public schools.

ADMITS THEFT OF THREE MACHINES

Llewellyn, caught here in Thrilling Arrest, Tells of his Operations. All Cars Located and Man is Given his Freedom.

Admitting the theft of three Ford cars, Raymond Llewellyn who was captured by Chief of Police Emmons near Gettysburg several weeks ago, was released in Philadelphia Criminal Court on Friday when his father paid the costs and secured the return of all three cars to their owners. Llewellyn, it will be recalled, was the man who was arrested by Officer Emmons only after the official had shot a hole in the rear tire of his machine and held him up at the point of a revolver.

The release of the auto thief was secured through his confession to the theft of all three cars and telling the authorities of their whereabouts. The one car was secured here, another at Morgantown West Virginia, and a third at Pittsburgh. All three had been stolen at the space at City Hall, Philadelphia, used for parking purposes, and the two of the cars were sold. The father of Llewellyn secured the return to their rightful owners and paid all the costs involved.

The owner of the automobile which Officer Emmons recovered at Gettysburg was so much pleased with its return that he presented Mr. Emmons with a beautiful diamond ring which the officer is now wearing.

Chief of Police Emmons who was directly responsible for the securing of the cars was in Philadelphia on Friday in connection with the case. He states that young Llewellyn promised to go back to his home at Uniontown, and that, upon this promise, and the return of the cars, he was given his freedom.

The man is twenty five years old, is married and has one child.

800 ACRES BURNED OVER

Blaze is Halted before it Reaches Much Valuable Timber Land.

After the efforts of almost half a hundred men who had been fighting it for two days were unsuccessful in stopping the spread, the mountain fire which started on the lands of Benjamin Rice near Barnitz, was extinguished Thursday evening by the rain storm which passed over that section.

In all, between 800 and 900 acres of land was burned over. The timber was second growth for the most part but on the sides of the burned area were other valuable woodlands which were frequently menaced by the spreading fire. The loss will reach several thousands of dollars although an estimate could not be given today.

Benjamin Rice, the Weakley Estate, T. H. Craighead and Charles Wharton sustained losses. J. E. Lehman has a small tract burned. The source of origin is believed to have been hunters. The fire was not near any building although some were located on the lands threatened.

It is possible that application will be made to the State Fire Marshall for a patrol of that section during the hunting season when many fires occur.

MANY PEOPLE TAKEN BY DEATH

Prominent Taneytown Resident Found Dead in Bed. Miss Herman, Many Years a Teacher, Dies in Cumberland Township.

HENRY C. WILT

Henry C. Wilt, one of the oldest citizens of Taneytown, was found dead in his bed on Friday morning. He retired about 10.30, Thursday night, apparently in his usual condition. His age was 80 years, 7 months, and 25 days.

Mr. Wilt was a man of unusual intelligence and usefulness during his lifetime, having taught in the public schools for 50 years, and was a surveyor and conveyancer of fine ability. He had part in surveying, or writing deeds or mortgages, for most of the real estate in Taneytown district, and his work was exceptionally exact and thorough.

He leaves one son, G. Walter Wilt, assistant cashier for the Birnie Trust Company, and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur W. Coombs, of Hagerstown; also several stepchildren.

Funeral services in charge of his pastor, Rev. L. B. Hafer, at the home at 1.30 Sunday afternoon, followed by interment in the Lutheran cemetery, Taneytown.

MISS HARRIET A. HERMAN

Miss Harriet Alverta Herman died in Cumberland township at six o'clock this morning after a lingering illness. She was forty eight years old.

For a number of years she taught in the public schools of Adams county.

Miss Herman was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Herman, both of whom are dead. She leaves two brothers, Oliver and Ellis Herman, of Straban township; and two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Carl, of Mt. Pleasant township; and Mrs. W. L. Rinehart, of York.

Funeral on Tuesday morning, meeting at the home of W. C. Carl, Mt. Pleasant township, at ten o'clock. Services and interment at Salem United Brethren church.

Friends and relatives will accept this as notice of the funeral.

HOWARD BANKARD

Struck by a Western Maryland shifting engine in York Friday morning Howard Bankard, young son of Mrs. Theodore Bankard, of Taneytown, was instantly killed. The body was dragged for some distance and horribly mangled. The coroner took testimony in the case and decided that the accident had occurred through the boy's own negligence and that no inquest was necessary.

He was 16 years of age and is survived by his mother and the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. George E. Koutz, Miss Helen, and Messrs. Monroee and George Bankard, of Taneytown, and Curvin Bankard, of York.

Funeral in Taneytown.

SIMON P. WEAVER

Simon P. Weaver, one of the most widely known men in Carroll county, died at his home in Westminster, Friday morning, after an illness of several weeks. He taught in the public schools of the county many years. He was a brother-in-law of J. E. Plank, of Gettysburg.

Funeral services at 1.30 Monday afternoon at his late home. Further services at the church. Interment in the cemetery at Westminster.

IMPROVES MILL

George Gingell Puts Modern Machinery in his Property.

George E. Gingell, who recently purchased the Star Flouring Mills from G. E. Bell, has begun extensive improvements on the property. The walls of the dam have been raised and strengthened by reinforced concrete. Mr. Gingell has ordered new machinery of the latest improvement for further perfecting the flour process. The plant will begin operation under the new management and with the new equipment about November 15.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Boy Thrown by Mule is Suffering from Severe Injuries.

Louis Hoffman, a son of John Hoffman, of near East Berlin, is in a serious condition as the result of a fall from a mule in which he received severe injuries to his head. The boy was thrown when the mule took fright at a barking dog. He was unconscious for some hours and it is feared that he may have concussion of the brain.

FLOODS SWEEP BACK GERMANS

Allies Open Sluices Along the Yser Canal.

TEUTONS LOSE HEAVILY

Artillery Fire Completes Havoc In Retreat of the Kaiser's Forces Near Dixmunde.

London, Oct. 31.—Artificial floods
of a far more dangerous character
than any caused by the natural rise
of a stream, aided the allied armies
in Flanders to rout the German forces that had crossed the river Yser within the last week and refused to be dislodged in spite of a most terrific cannonade from the land and sea batteries.

Without a sign of warning the invaders found themselves suddenly in front of madly rushing walls of water, the work of the Belgians, who had opened the sluices of the Yser canal.

Themselves forewarned by their commanders, the allied forces had withdrew slowly as the time for in-undating the territory occupied by the Germans arrived. The latter, however, were caught in the surging tide
as it rolled over the battlefield and engulfed them.

Thousands are believed to have drowned before the signal was sounded for a general retreat across the river. Many more were washed to their death when the German forces had already begun to fall back, while hundreds of others were torn to pieces by shells from the heavy Belgian, French and British artillery
which had been mounted in positions
that commanded the retreat across the river. The onrushing waters made a reply to the cannonade from the German batteries impossible.

On the line between Dixmunde and Neuport, in Belgium, the German attacks delivered by other units than those who fared so poorly on the Yser, were repulsed, according to the official French statement issued in Paris, with heavy losses. At La Bassee
the British troops found themselves
under the heavy onslaughts of the invaders' artillery and infantry, but at no point were they compelled to fall back.

Further south there have been few important actions along the great battle front, although the French claim to have occupied a number of villages
after engagements around Albert and Arras. Progress is also claimed by the French upon the heights of the right bank of the Aisne, down stream
from Soissons and in several sections
along the Meuse to the south of Verdun.

The Amsterdam Telegram states
that fierce fighting between the Germans and the allies was restarted in Flanders. Heavy firing was heard and German troops continually were moving to Zebrugge, where the garrison
had been reinforced by 11,000 marines stationed near Heyst.

A dispatch from the correspondent of Reuter's Telegram company at Paris says:

"The news is excellent. I am able to state on the best authority that the efforts of the allies are being crowned with success.

"In consequence of the opening of the sluices of the Yser canal thousands of Germans were caught. Those who escaped drowning were harassed
by the artillery.

"Some points of extra strategic importance have been occupied by the left wing of the allies, while along practically the whole rest of the front
as far as the French eastern frontier
the allies progress continues.

"The German losses are terrific."
In a dispatch from Amsterdam a correspondent of the Central News
quotes the representative at Ostend
of the newspaper Tyd to the effect that thousands of wounded Germans are returning from the battlefields in Flanders. Loaded into all kinds of vehicles, the sad procession of wounded men is moving northward; those not too seriously wounded are traveling on foot.

Thousands of unburied bodies cover the battlefield, the correspondent continues, and no one can form an adequate idea of the awful number of victims falling every moment in this mad fight.

Between Leps and Middlekerke the Germans have ceased firing because their shells would kill German troops
as well as the soldiers of the allies.
Consequently only hand to hand fighting is taking place.

A Daily Telegraph correspondent
sends a dispatch from the Belgian frontier that the Germans are making preparations to retreat from their present positions in Belgium. They are removing their wounded from Bruges to Brussels and are throwing up entrenchments all the way along the proposed line of retreat from Ostend.

"All that has been said regarding the severity of the fighting around Dixmunde," continues the dispatch
"has been too mild. Dixmunde itself is in ruins and not a single house is standing in the adjacent villages of Beerst, Keyem, Essen and Vladslo.
All five places are practically a shambles, the streets heaped with German dead left behind in the retreat forced
by the allies' artillery.

KRUPP GUN WORKS.

Daughter of Founder Present
Owner and View of Factory.

This is a view of the great Krupp
gun factory and its owner, Frau Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, who was formerly Miss Bertha Krupp, the daughter of the founder. The largest guns ever manufactured are being made in this plant for the German army. It employs usually about 70, 000 men, but the force has been doubled since the outbreak of the war.

been found in a condition of hysteria, shattered by the ordeal through which they had passed. A sign of demoralization in the German ranks
is the number of deserters and stragglers seeking sanctuary beyond the Dutch border. The German authorities have sent out patrols especially to prevent these desertions.

The official bulletins are as follows:

FRENCH.

"On the extreme left inundations
brought about by the Belgian army
in the lower valley of the river Yser
have compelled the forces of the enemy which had passed this river to withdraw. They were subjected to a violent cannonade by the Belgian and French artillery during their movement of retreat.

"The Germans endeavored Thursday to deliver very violent counter attacks on the French and British army corps which were progressing to the northeast and to the east of Ypres.

"At the end of the day our troops had, notwithstanding, continued their forward movement in the direction
which had been assigned them, and had also taken possession of various points of support.

"The British troops, assailed at several points to the north of La Bassee by superior forces, resumed
the offensive with energy and recon-quered to a considerable extent the ground yielded to the enemy. At several other points on their line of combat the British troops repulsed the attacks of the Germans, inflicting on them important losses.

"On the remainder of the front
there has been no general action, only partial offensive movements on our part as well as on the part of the enemy. We have made progress almost everywhere, notably before certain villages between Arras and Albert; upon the heights of the right bank of the Aisne, down stream from Soissons and here and there along the Meuse to the north of Verdun."

GERMAN.

"Our attacks to the south of Nieport and to the east of Ypres are being successfully continued. Eight machine guns and 200 British soldiers have been captured.

"In the Argonne forest our troops
have occupied several block houses
and points of support.

"To the northwest of Verdun the French attacked without success. In the other parts of the western war
heater and in the eastern arena the situation is unchanged."

CARRANZA ASKS EVACUATION DAY

Won't Give Guarantees Until
U. S. Quits Vera Cruz.

HE THREATENS CONVENTION

He Mobilizes the Mexican Army to Descend on Peace Delegates in Charge.

Washington, Oct. 31.—That General
Carranza has told the American government that he will not give guarantees such as the United States has asked regarding Vera Cruz, until the president sets a date for the evacuation of that port, was stated by the war department officials. No reply
has yet been sent to him.

It is stated that General Aguilar,
who gave the guarantee that the United States requested, had no authority on behalf of Carranza for his action.

Carranza's message caused officials to indicate plainly that the forces of the United States will only be withdrawn after the Mexican government gives the required assurance for the protection of those who have served General Funston and complies with other conditions which have been the subject of negotiation.

Carranza Threatens Peace Convention.
Agua Calientes, Mex., Oct. 31.—It is reported that General Carranza's troops have cut railroad communications south of this city and that a large number of troops are on their way north from Mexico City.

It is known that Carranza has at least 16,000 men at Leon, twenty-six miles south of this city, and that a large force of Carranzistas is entrenched to the east of Agua Cal-ientes.

It was charged in the national peace convention that the Carranza mobilization to the south of Agua Calientes and to the east was for the purpose of descending upon the city
suddenly in force and arresting the peace delegates and generals who are known to be hostile to the present government in Mexico City. The charge that such a move was contemplated was denied by the representatives of Carranza.

Fighting Near Mexico City.

Mexico City, Oct. 31.—Fighting was resumed again near San Angel, on the outskirts of the capital, between followers of Emiliano Zapata to the Constitutionalists.

Colonel Fragoso captured Tizapan,
while his connected with the capital
by an electric car line, and drove General Tacheco to the nearby hills. Tizapan has been in the hands of the Zapata men for several weeks.

The government says that the fighting was forced by the followers of Zapata and that its troops were compelled to resist in order to protect the capital.

JAPANESE CRUISERS GO TO SEEK EMDEN

Mikado's Vessels Start in Pursuit of German Warship.

Tokio, Oct. 31.—Two of the Japanese cruisers set out from Penang in pursuit of the German cruiser Emden,
which sank the Russian cruiser Jemchug and a French destroyer in the harbor there on Thursday. The Emden has more than a two days' start over her pursuers.

Mines Blow Up Two Vessels.

Grimsby, Eng., Oct. 31.—The trawler Rosella struck a mine on the east coast on Thursday and was sunk. Her captain and chief mate are missing.
Eight survivors from her crew have been landed at Shields.

The Ramsgate fishing boat Oulton struck a mine on Wednesday and immediately went down. A sister boat nearly crashed about in the vicinity
for several hours in a vain search for the fishing boat's crew of three men.
A whale killed by a mine drifted
ashore at Margate.

Rich Man's Body in Morgue.

New York, Oct. 31.—Awaiting a claimant, the body of Ward B. Sheardown, vice president of the Standard Milling company, one of the largest flour milling companies in the country, is lying in the public morgue.
Mr. Sheardown died after he had been struck by a trolley car. He was fifty-five years old and unmarried.

Maritz Revolt Broken.

London, Oct. 31.—Colonel Brits, who has been engaged in suppressing the rebellion started by Lieutenant Colonel Maritz in the Northwest Cape provinces, reports that the invasion
of the Cape has finally been broken,
according to a Cape Town dispatch.

German Submarine Sank by British.
London, Oct. 31.—The Daily Mail's correspondent "On the Allies' Left Wing" reports that a German submarine boat which attacked the British battleship Venerable off the Belgian coast has been sunk.

400 MEN FLEE IRELAND

Arrive Here in Search of Work, Fearing Conscription by Britain.

New York, Oct. 31.—Four hundred Irishmen, from sixteen to twenty-five years old, came over from Queenstown in a body on the steamer Cedric,
which has just reached here.

They declined to say if they had come to America rather than enlist
in the British army, but did say that they came to the United States to look for work.

It was reported among the other passengers that they had left Ireland
because an Irish labor leader had convicted them that the British government was soon to enforce conscription in Ireland.

According to recent mail advices
from Dublin the emigration of Irishmen of military service age has been
heavier this fall than in many years,
and that it is giving the authorities
some uneasiness.

HOSPITAL SHIP IS WRECKED; 100 LOST

British Vessel on Way to Get Wounded Strikes Rocks.

London, Oct. 31.—It is believed that at least 100 persons have perished
through the running on the rocks
near Whitby of the steamer Rohilla,
a British vessel of 7000 tons, which was being used as a hospital ship.

Including the hospital unit and her crew, there were about 200 persons
on board the vessel.

A dispatch to the Evening News
from Whitby said the ship had broken in two and her stern gone down.
The life savers shot a line across the floating forward part of the Rohilla,
but communication between it and
the shore could not be established.

Four seamen were found among some wreckage thrown up on the coast, they having evidently tried to swim ashore. Among the wreckage was the name "Rohilla of Glasgow."
Tremendous waves are breaking over the vessel and the members of the crew can be seen in the rigging.

The Rohilla was bound from Queen's Ferry to Belgium to bring back wounded from France.

HAITIEN PRESIDENT FLEES

Rebels in Possession of Port-au-
Prince and U. S. Sends Warships.

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Zamor of Hayti has been obliged to quit his capital, Port-au-Prince, and seek refuge on a Dutch vessel, according to a report to the state department from the American legation in Hayti. Officials interpret this to mean that the rebels are in complete control of Port-au-Prince.

Orders to proceed with all possible
speed from Dominican waters to Port-au-Prince have been sent by the navy department to the transport Hancock, which carries a full regiment of marines. At the same time the battleship Nebraska was ordered to Port-au-Prince from Vera Cruz.

2000 CHILDREN ON PARADE

Educational Rally Includes Historical Pageant and Athletic Contests.

Cambridge, Md., Oct. 31.—Two thousand school children attended an educational rally held in Cambridge.

Features of the program were a street parade of children bearing flags
and banners, athletic and spelling
contests and the historical drama
"Burning of the Peggy Stewart" in Cambridge harbor.

A meeting in the interest of the proposed bond issue of $50,000 for school purposes was addressed by State Superintendent Stephens and Dr. McBrien.

Joffre Not Showing His Teeth.

Paris, Oct. 31.—A good story is being told here of General Joffre and certain politicians who tried to learn of his campaign plans. General Joffre is noted for being able to keep his own counsel and on this occasion,
when the politicians questioned him
as to what he intended doing against the Germans, he said: "I'm just nibbling away at them for the time being."

Report Crown Prince Wounded.

Rome, via London, Oct. 31.—It is reported here that the German crown prince has been wounded while leading an attack on Verdun.

TRACT

Tract—

WAR IN EUROPE MANY SIDES OF

Grim and Strange Incidents of Most Terrible of World's Struggles.

LOSSES IN THE WAR NOW ABOVE 2,000,000.

Figures that appear in recent war dispatches indicate the appalling extent to which the losses
in the war have grown.

A Copenhagen dispatch estimates the German losses during the fighting in France at 750,000.
Paris hears that the allies lost
10,000 men a day in ten days
fighting over toward the Belgian coast in what has become known as the battle of Flanders. The German losses in the same battle have been correspondingly
large, if not larger.

One dispatch says the Germans lost 20,000 men "in the recent fighting." Another tells of 2,000 German dead in front of one position.

All the dispatches admit that the losses in the battle which resulted in the German retreat in Poland have been enormous. In the early stages of the fighting
the loss on the German side was placed by Russian reports at 40,000.

The Germans say they have more than 290,000 prisoners.

A rough estimate of the dead,
wounded and missing of all the belligerents puts the number far beyond 2,000,000 men.

THAT cold and cannon cannot kill German humor is shown by a postcard written in pencil by a young German officer in the trenches on the Aisne, where he had lain for several weeks in the first line of the German forces. The contents of the card, as published in the Frankfurter Zeitung, are here given in translation:

Our hair has grown into a mass,
Soap's unknown in all this dirt,
We never change our teeth,
We never change our shirt.
Our clothes are always soaking wet
And many a time for meals we fret.
Of beer or wine, alas!
We get no bottle, keg or glass.
In leaky shoes our cold toes squish,
And mud and mire our faces splash.
The only things that still are dry
Are General Humor, friend and I.
And yet this heroism
Is not without its charms:
We're drawn by rheumatism
To valiant force of arms.

"Wounds Make You Grow."

Gustave Chatin, fifteen years old, a Paris gamin and a soldier, who was brought to the hospital in Paris, after he had been playing at war like a man, has gone again to the front. He wished to continue his game of war, having an ambition to capture a flag.

The good sisters who had been nursing his wounds were unable to restrain
him, especially since an army lieutenant
had given him a uniform with the congratulations of the officers of the regiment.

His father took him to the recruiting office. When the father told Gustave where they were going the boy looked from his bed.

"Bully," he cried, and jumped in his clothes in feverish haste.

Some one suggested teasingly that he would be rejected because he was so small.

"A wound is like soup, it makes you grow," retorted the boy. "Anyway, if they refuse me I will find a way to wiggle to the front ranks."

Set Forest on Fire With Foes.

A number of interesting episodes of the recent fighting between the Russians on the one side and the German and Austrians on the other are beginning to find their way into print.

Opposite Koenitz, where thick
woods run almost to Radom, the Germans filled the whole forest with troops, including some heavy artillery.
The latter in fancied security and well
concealed was doing a good deal of exciting practice without effecting anything in particular, but the German infantry under this admirable cover for a long time prevented the Russians
from making much of an impression.

At length several small bodies of volunteers from the ranks stalked the German lines, got around into three or four suitable spots and fired the forest.
The wind aiding it, the conflagration
spread with terrible rapidity, and thousands of Germans were suffocated by the dense smoke or burned alive.
When it was seen that the fire had gained a good hold the Germans dropped everything and fled, but the foes
had been fired in too many places for the panic-stricken troops to escape, and few ever got away.

Owes His Life to His Horse.

Trooper S. Stanley of the Royal Scots
Greys, writing to a friend in Edinburgh, says: "I owe my own life and that of perhaps a whole army to my old horse. I was on outpost duty at a lonely spot, and though I could not hear or see anything, my horse kept neighing and betraying signs of restlessness."

"I got down and came on a German crouching in the long grass. He had a sword bayonet and evidently meant to get me unawares, and then the post
would have been robbed. I didn't wait to ask his intentions, but let him have a ticket for another country."

"His yell brought his mates down.

Flag of Belgium.

The Belgian flag perpetuates the colors of the Juchy of Brabant, and was adopted when the monarchy was set up in 1831. The red, it should be noted by those who wish to use it cor-

but I got away, and the row alarmed
the guard and spoiled their attempt at surprising us. You bet the old nag had a special feed that night."

A Soldier's Unfinished Letter.

A touching story of an unfinished letter is told by a private in the Scots guards: "In the trenches in one of our
off days I was sitting smoking a 'fag,'
and my chum was writing a letter to his mother. He had got to this—I have got through without a scratch so far, but you never know your luck
out—when a bullet rounded off that sentence better than you or I could do it, and his grave is in the lonely valley
of the Aisne."

A beautiful little story of self sacrifice is told by a gunner of the Royal artillery: "In one of our night fights,"
he writes, "a chap of the Gloucesters
had his rifle knocked out of his hand
and a big German lunged at him with a bayonet. Quick as lightning one of his mates sprang between him and the German and received the thrust in his chest. He died within an hour, and when asked why he did it his answer was: 'God! I couldn't help it! He's got a wife and kids.'"

Austrian Kaiser Decorates Girl.

Rosa Zenoeh, a twelve-year-old Austrian girl, who was seriously wounded
while ministering to her father, an Austrian officer, on the battlefield of Tannenberg, has been decorated by Emperor Francis Joseph personally for bravery, according to Max Fivars of Braddock, Pa., who was a passenger on the steamer Red Cross, which reached
New York from Europe.

"I met the little girl on a train conveying wounded soldiers to Vienna," Mr. Fivars said. "She was with her father, who also was wounded. During a lull in the fighting at Tannenberg she had gone out on the field carrying water for the wounded. She found her father lying there and was giving him
a drink when a shell burst near them.
Her right leg was almost torn from
her body."

"Emperor Francis Joseph heard of her bravery and visited the girl at the hospital. By his personal orders she and her father are receiving every possible care while there. He decorated her, and when she gets well she will wear an artificial leg made for her
by the emperor's orders."

Bomb Set Americans Free.

After having been confined in a prison
at Antwerp for nearly two months,
suspected of being German spies, four Americans were given their release by means of a German bomb which destroyed the walls of their prison. The Americans are Frank Rosney, Thomas
McKeown, Frank Smith and William Boyle, all of New York, who returned home on the steamship Red Cross,
which left in September with American nurses and doctors for European battlegrounds.

According to the story told by the Americans, they were going from Antwerp to Rotterdam when they were arrested as spies and held, pending investigation.

"We were confined in a prison at Antwerp," the spokesman said, "and were evidently forgotten when the city was bombarded by the Germans. On the second day of the attack a bomb struck the wall of our prison, tearing it away and enabling us to escape. We then joined the tide of refugees going into Holland and made our way to Rotterdam."

Delivered Message but Lost Life.

La Liberté of Paris describes the death of a young Frenchman, which it calls the most heroic yet recorded.
René Granger, aged eighteen, born in La Vendee, where his great-grand father fought against the republic, volunteered at the outbreak of the war.
He was attached to a regiment engaged in Lorraine, where his ability was rapidly rewarded with the rank of corporal. Recently, when his regiment held an especially dangerous position
on the fighting line, his colonel asked for a volunteer to take a message to the advanced companies across ground exposed to a deadly fire. Granger offered to go, and the colonel demurred,
owing to his youth, but finally agreed
to send him.

Granger gave the orders to the first three companies and received a wound
in the hip as he approached the fourth.
Nevertheless he persisted in his task,
crawling across 300 yards of the shot-
swept plain to the farthest company.
When only fifty yards from the goal he was mortally wounded by a shell. Litter bearers from the force he was trying to reach picked him up, and he succeeded in giving his message with his dying breath.

Leaves $5,000,000 to City.

Announcement was made in Houston, Tex., that George H. Hermann, bachelor and philanthropist, had left
his entire estate, save a few minor bequests, to the city of Houston, to be used in erecting and endowing a great charity hospital. The estate will amount to approximately $5,000,000.
Previous bequests by Mr. Hermann to the city of Houston during his residence here, amounted to more than $1,000,000.

DIRECTOR OF MINT QUILTS

George E. Roberts Quits Government
Post For Private Business.

Washington, Oct. 31.—George E.
Roberts, director of the mint, has resigned his post. His resignation will take effect when it is accepted by the president.

Director Roberts is a Republican
and has served two terms as director, his last appointment being on Sept. 3, 1910. Roberts leaves to enter private business. It is understood that he has a position with a large financial institution.

THREE WEEKS ONLY REMAIN

Time of Great Circulation Campaign
in now Growing Short and only those who Utilize Every Moment
Can Expect to Win.

With the close of this week, but
three more weeks remain of the Times-News circulation campaign — just three more weeks in which to get enough votes to win one of the prizes.
That means hustle, and hustle every available moment for the contestants
who are in the contest in earnest.

There are plenty of subscriptions yet to be had and there is plenty of territory for all of the contestants to work in. In fact there is so much yet to be done, that only those who get right down to business and who make every moment count, will be able to get around and to be in the race at the end.

And now that the end of the contest
is drawing near, it is time to collect the promises of help that have been made at the beginning. Do not wait until the last minute to get these subscriptions. Any number of things might happen that would make it impossible for you to see the parties or to get their subscriptions. Get them now while you can and then you will have the last days of the race free to work on new fields and among different people.

And do not forget the importance of the next week. Without being told,
most of the real contestants realize what this week can be made to do for them and have started out to take full advantage of it. Those who do this will be all right, but those who just get one or two of the extra ballots and then rest will find that they have fallen away behind and that it will be impossible for them to catch up before the race is over.

True Devotion.

Little Katharine had a big dog
which she loved dearly. One cold night she asked if the dog could come into the house for a while. Her mother said: "Yes; but as soon as he begins to scratch, you must put him right out." Later Katharine was heard to exclaim: "O, Bettie, don't scratch;
tell me where it itches, and I'll scratch
it for you."—Chicago Tribune.

November Joe

The Detective of the Woods

By HESKETH PRICHARD

Copyright, 1913.
By Hesketh Prichard

PROLOGUE.

One of the most interesting characters in fiction, November Joe, well deserves to take his place in the hall of fame alongside his more famous prototype, Sherlock Holmes. In the woods Sherlock Holmes no doubt would have been of little value in ferreting out criminals, because woodcraft was not in his line. In the city, too, November Joe would not have compared in merit of achievement with Holmes, but in the woods every leaf and twig, stone and bit of moss where it has been in contact with human beings or animals tells its story to the keen eyes and analytical mind of November Joe.

CHAPTER I.

It happened that in the early autumn of 1908 I, James Quaritch of Quebec, went down to Montreal. I was at the time much engaged in an important business transaction, which after long and complicated negotiations appeared to be nearing a successful issue. A few days after my arrival I dined with Sir Andrew McLeck, the celebrated nerve specialist and lecturer at McGill university, who had been for many years my friend.

On similar occasions I had usually remained for half an hour after the other guests had departed, so that when he turned from saying his last goodby Sir Andrew found me choosing a fresh cigar.

"I cannot call to mind, James, that I invited you to help yourself to another smoke," he said.

I laughed.

"Don't mention it, Andrew; I am accustomed to your manners. All the same—"

He watched me light up. "Make the most of it, for it will be some time before you enjoy another."

"I have felt your searching eye upon me more than tonight. What is it?"

"My dear James, the new morning emanation of the papers are so full of, and of which I understand that you are the leading spirit, will no doubt be a great success, yet is it really worth the sacrifice of your excellent health?"

"But I feel quite as usual."

"Sleep as much as usual?"

"Perhaps not," I admitted unwillingly.

"Appetite as good as usual?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"Tush, man, James! Stand up."

Thereupon he began an examination which merged into a lecture, and the lecture in due course ended in my decision to take a vacation immediately—a long vacation, to be spent beyond reach of letter or telegram in the woods.

"That's right! That's right!" commented Sir Andrew. "What do the horns of that fellow with the big bell, which you have hanging in your office, measure?"

"Fifty-nine inches."

"Then go and shoot one with a spread of sixty."

"I believe you are right," said I, "but the worst of it is that my guide, Noel Tribonet, is laid up with rheumatism and will certainly not be fit to go with me just now. Indeed, I doubt if he will ever be much good in the woods again."

"But what if I can recommend you a new man?"

"Thanks, but I have had the trouble of training Noel already."

"I can guarantee that you will not find it necessary to train November Joe."

"November Joe?"

"Yes, do you know him?"

"Curiously enough, I do. He was with me as dishwasher when I was up with Tom Todd some years ago in Maine. He was a boy then. Once when we were on the march and were overtaken by a very bad snowstorm, Todd and the boy had a difference of opinion as to the direction we should take."

"And Joe was right?"

"He was," said I. "Todd didn't like it at all."

"Tom Todd had quite a reputation, hadn't he?"

"Naturally he would. He was, well, that must be years ago, and Joe's twenty-four now."

"And a good name in the woods, you say?"

"None better. The most capable on this continent, I verily believe. If Joe is free and can go with you, you will get your moose with the sixty inch horns. I understand that he has entered into some sort of contract with the provincial police."

"With the police?" I repeated.

"Yes. He is to help them in such cases as may lie within the scope of his special experience. He is, indeed, the very last person I should like to have upon my trail had I committed a murder. He is a most skilled and minute observer, and you must not forget that the specialty of a Sherlock Holmes is the everyday routine of a woodsman. Observation and deduction are part and parcel of his daily existence. He literally reads as he runs. The floor of the forest is his page. And when a crime is committed in the woods these facts are very fortunate. There nature is the criminal's best ally. She seems to league herself with him in many ways. Often she delays the discovery of his ill doing; she covers his deeds with her leaves and her snow; his track she washes away with her rain, and more than all she provides him with a vast area of refuge, over which she sends the appointed hours of darkness, during which he can travel fast and far.

"All things considered, it is surprising that so many woods crimes are brought home to their perpetrators."

"There you are forgetting one very important point. I have been present at many trials and the most dangerous witnesses that I have ever seen have been men of the November Joe type—that is, practically illiterate woodsmen. Their evidence has a quality of terrible simplicity. They give minute but unanswerable details. All their experiences are first hand. They bring forward naked facts with sledge hammer results. Where a town bred man would see nothing but a series of blurred footprints in the morning dew, an ordinary dweller in the woods could learn something from them, but November Joe can often reconstruct the man who made them, sometimes in a manner and with an exactitude that has struck me as little short of marvelous."

"I see he has interested you," said I, half smiling.

"I confess he has. Looked at from a scientific standpoint I consider him the perfect product of his environment. There are few things I would enjoy more than to watch November using his experience and his supernatural senses in the unravelling of some crime of the woods."

"I threw the stump of my cigar into the fire."

"You have persuaded me," I said. "I will try to make a start by the end of the week. Where is Joe to be found?"

"As to that, I believe you might get into touch with him at Harding's farm. Silent Water, Beauce."

"I'll write to him."

"Not much use. He only calls for letters when he feels inclined."

"Then I'll go to Harding's and arrange the trip by word of mouth."

"That would certainly be the best plan, and, anyhow, the sooner you get into the woods the better. Besides, you will be more likely to secure Joe by doing that, as he is inclined to be shy of strangers."

I rose and shook hands with my host.

"Remember me to Joe," said he. "I like that young man. Goodby and good luck."

Along the borders of Beauce and Maine, between the United States and Canada, lies a land of spruce forest and of hardwood ridges. Here little farms stand on the edge of the big timber, and far beyond them, in the depths of the woodlands, the lumber camps and the wide flung paths of trappers and pelt hunters.

I left the cars at Silent Water and rode off at once to Harding's, the house of the Beauce farmer where I meant to put up for the night. Mrs. Harding received me graciously and placed an excellent supper before me. While I was eating it a squall blew up with the fall of darkness, and I was glad enough to find myself in safe shelter.

Outside the wind was whirling among the pines which inclosed the farmhouse, when inside the telephone bell rang, which connected us with St. George, forty miles distant, rang suddenly and inconspicuously high above the clamor of the forest noises.

Mrs. Harding took up the receiver, and this is what I heard.

"My husband won't be home tonight; he's gone into St. George. No, I have no one to send. But how can I? There is no one here but me and the children. Well, there's Mr. Quaritch, a sport, staying the night. No, I couldn't ask him."

"Why not?" I inquired.

Mrs. Harding shook her head as she stood still holding the receiver. She was a matron of distinct comeliness, and she looked amazingly well.

"You can ask me anything," I urged.

"They want some one to carry a message to November Joe," she explained. "It's the provincial police on the phone."

"I'll go."

"Joe made me promise not to send any sports after him," she said doubtfully. "They all want him now he's famous."

"But November Joe is rather a friend of mine. I hunted with him years ago when he lived on the Montmorency."

"Is that so?" Her face relaxed a little. "Well, perhaps"—she conceded "Of course I'll carry the message."

"It's quite a way to his place. November doesn't care about strangers. He's a solitary man. You must follow the tote road you were on today fifteen miles, turn west at the deserted lumber camp, cross Charley's brook. Joe lives about two acres up the far bank."

She lifted the receiver. "Shall I say you'll go?"

"By all means."

A few seconds later I was at the phone taking my instructions. It appeared that the speaker was the chief of police in Quebec, who was of course well known to me. I will let you have his own words.

"Very good of you, I'm sure, Mr. Quaritch. Yes, we want November Joe to be told that a man named Henry Lyon has been shot in his camp down at Big Tree portage, on Depot river. The news came in just now, telephoned through by a lumberjack who found the body. Tell Joe, please, success means $50 to him. Yes, that's all. Much obliged. Yes, the sooner he hears about it the better. Good night."

"I hung up the receiver, turned to Mrs. Harding and told her the facts. "So November is connected with police work now?"

"Didn't you read in the newspapers about the 'Long Island Murder'?"

I remembered the case at once; it had been a nine days' wonder of headline and comment, and now I wondered how it was that I missed the mention of Joe's name.

"November was the man who put together that puzzle for them down in

And placed an excellent supper before me.

New York," Mrs. Harding went on. "Ever since they have been waiting him to work for them. They offered him $100 a month to go to New York and take on detective jobs there."

"Ah, and what had he to say to that?"

"Said he wouldn't leave the woods for a thousand."

"Well?"

"They offered him the thousand."

"With what result?"

"He started out in the night for his shack. Came in here as he passed and told my husband he would rather be tied to a tree in the woods for the rest of his life than live on Fifth avenue. The lumberjacks and the guides hereabouts think a lot of him. Now you'd best saddle Laura—that's the big gray mare you'll find in the rear stall of the stable—and go right off. There'll be a moon when the storm blows itself out."

By the help of the lantern I saddled Laura and stumbled away into the dark and the wind. For the chief part of the way I had to lead the mare, and the dawn was gray in the open places before I reached the deserted lumber camp, and all the time my mind was busy with memories of November. Boy though he had been when I knew him, his personality had impressed itself upon me by reason of a certain adequate quietness with which he fulfilled the duties, many and disagreeable, which bearded old Tom Todd took a delight in laying upon his young shoulders.

I remembered, too, the expression of humor and mocking tolerance which used to invade the boy's face whenever old Tom was overruled by one of his habitual fits of talking big. Once when Tom spoke by the camp fire of some lake to which he desired to guide me and of which he stated that the shores had never been trodden by white man's foot Joe had to cover his mouth with his hand. When we were alone, Todd having departed to make some necessary repairs to the canoe, I asked Joe what he meant by laughing at his elders.

"I suppose a boy's foot ain't a man's anyways," remarked Joe innocently, and more he would not say.

The sun was showing over the tree tops when I drew rein by the door of the shack, and at the same moment came in view of the slim but powerful figure of a young man who was busy rolling some gear into a pack. He raised himself and, just as I was about to speak, drawled out:

"My! Mr. Quaritch, you! Who'd a thought it?"

NAVAL CONFLICT RAGING AT ODESSA

Russian Fleet Engages Turkish Warships in Battle.

TWO GERMAN CRUISERS AID

Sink Russian Gunboat and Two Steamships, Besides Damaging a French Vessel.

London, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Rome says:

"It is reported from Constantinople that a battle between the Turkish and Russian fleets is in progress off Odessa."

The Berlin newspaper Zeitung-Am-Mittag published what purports to be an official communication from Constantinople. It states:

"Russian torpedo boats attempted to prevent the Turkish fleet from leaving the Bosphorus and steaming into the Black sea. The Turkish ships opened fire and sank two of the Russian vessels. More than thirty Russian sailors, saved by the Turks, were made prisoners. The Turkish fleet sustained no losses."

Thus far there has been no open movement against France or Great Britain, although such a step is looked for next by both these governments.

Russia has recognized that a state of war exists by directing her ambassador at Constantinople and all Russian consuls in Turkish ports to at once withdraw from that country.

By beginning hostilities without announcement of her intentions, Turkey has scored the first success of this new war. Three Russian ports on the Black sea have been entered and two of them bombarded.

Entering Odessa, which is on the northwest coast of the Black sea, on Wednesday night, two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers bombarded the city and sank the Russian gunboat Donets, and also inflicted damage on the French liner Portugal and the Russian steamers Lazareff, Witiaz and Whampoa. A number of sailors were killed or wounded.

On Thursday morning a Turkish cruiser, which is reported to have been the former German cruiser Breslau, bombarded the port of Theodosia, on the southern coast of the Crimea, for an hour, damaging the cathedral, a pier and some sheds. One sailor on shore was wounded.

A dispatch from Petrograd to the Reuter Telegram company says:

"A dispatch from Kertsch, a seaport on the Crimea at the entrance to the Sea of Azov, reports that near the Takol lighthouse the Russian steamer Yalta, from the Caucasus, was sunk by a torpedo launched by the Turkish cruiser Goeben. The crew and passengers were saved."

"The steamer Kazbek, which went to the rescue, was struck by a torpedo and sank. Many persons aboard were drowned."

The battle array as a result of the entry of the Ottoman empire into the international struggle now stretches in an almost unbroken diagonal line across Europe, and as Turkey's adherence to the Teutonic side of the quarrel can hardly be the last new factor in the war which gradually is engulfing the eastern hemisphere it may reach from the Atlantic to the Indian oceans.

Greece, Rumania and Bulgaria are virtually certain to be drawn into the conflict which already is engaging ten nations, and the ultimate inclusion of Italy and Persia, with perhaps the Asiatic lands to the eastward of Persia is today regarded in London as scarcely less probable.

The action of Emperor Nicholas in instructing his ambassador and consuls to quit Turkey, will be followed promptly by similar action on the part of each of the allied governments, it is understood. The appearance of the allied fleet off the Dardanelles will be a natural sequence.

Move May Force Italy's Hand.

Paris, Oct. 31.—News that Turkey has joined issue with Germany and Austria against the allies overshadowed everything else here. The bringing into the conflict of the Turkish army, numbering between 700,000 and 900,000 men, is expected to immediately force Italy's hand. France has looked to Italy to dominate the Balkans, and she cannot do so if she remains idly neutral in the present crisis in European affairs.

England Warns Turkey.

Constantinople, Oct. 31.—In anticipation of the possible invasion of Egyptian territory, British Ambassador Mallet, acting under instructions from his government, has informed the grand vizier that if the Turks cross the frontier it would mean war with the entente powers.

Germany to Hold Aliens, Too.

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Germany has notified Great Britain through James W. Gerard, the American ambassador in Berlin, that if German civilians in England, excepting those against whom there are grounds of suspicion, are not liberated by Nov. 5, all the British subjects in Germany will be similarly arrested. The feeling on this subject in Berlin is high.

ADMIRAL LORD FISHER.

Appointed First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty.

FISHER HEADS BRITISH NAVY

Popular Old Sailor Succeeds Prince of Battenberg.

London, Oct. 31.—The appointment was announced of Admiral Lord Fisher to replace Prince Louis of Battenberg, who resigned as first sea lord of the admiralty.

The resignation of the prince was brought about by a campaign waged against him by some newspapers under the influence of popular clamor against the elaborate spy system organized in England by the German intelligence department.

CZAR DRIVES BACK SEVEN GERMAN ARMIES

Invaders of Russia in Flight From Baltic to Carpathians.

London, Oct. 31.—The essential feature of the news from the eastern theater of war is that five German and two Austrian armies, from the Baltic to the Carpathians, are in retreat.

Germany and Austria are withdrawing from Russian territory probably twenty-seven army corps, about 1,080,000 men. The withdrawal in the center, brought about by the crushing defeats west of the Vistula, is the most rapid.

In this district three German armies are falling back westward toward the line of Thorn-Kalisz and Poznanstachowa. The German right in Poland has been driven west of Skierniewice.

The center in Poland, unable to stand against the pursuing Russians, is now west of Lodz. The left is fighting rear guard actions between Radom and Kielce.

The situation in Galicia as reported by correspondents of London newspapers is similar. The reverse in Poland speedily affected the Austrian effort to cross the river San and to drive the Russians toward Lemberg. The latest intelligence is that two Austrian armies holding the line of Rzeszow and Sambor are giving way and that the news is expected almost hourly that the Russians are again sweeping toward Cracow.

Queer Things In The War News

The Austrian army is being fed with horseflesh, the supply of cattle having decreased materially.

An eyewitness writes that the army of the czar has more musicians than there are soldiers in the armies of the United States.

The favorite name in France for Germans is "Boches," pronounced "bosh." There is doubt of its derivation, but no doubt of its having a pleasing sound to the French.

The Paris Temps tried to publish the number of German prisoners in France, and when the censor got through this is the way it appeared: "The number of prisoners in France a few days ago was blank plus blank, including German civilians interned, making the minimum blank."

The Germans are said to be building a new type of large submarine which will be used for the transportation of troops. The main object is to enable the troops to reach shore without being detected by the forces on land. The new boats can also be employed as pontoons on the surface.

DOCTOR FINDS WAY TO DISINFECT MAN'S INTERIOR.

Method Kills Intestinal Bacteria With Antiseptic Solution.

J. T. Ainslee Walker, fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, a chemist of New York city, who is well known to the scientific world as the codiscoverer of a test for standardizing disinfectants, made an important announcement relative to intestinal disinfection in American Medicine.

If the tests which are being carried out independently by several physicians are as successful as those already announced the future treatment of typhoid fever, dysentery, cholera and other diseases arising from the presence of bacteria in the intestinal tract will consist in a large measure of the introduction of an antiseptic solution directly into the alimentary canal by means of a tube passed through the mouth, oesophagus, stomach and into the duodenum.

Efforts in the past to achieve satisfactory results by the employment of intestinal antiseptics have failed for the reason that the substances used have been of a strength sufficient to damage the tissues or to endanger life itself. According to Dr. Walker, the solution he uses does neither and is strong enough to kill the disease germs.

The new antiseptic consists of a solution of sodium sulphate, to which has been added a quantity of trimethyl-methoxy-phenol in the form of gelatin emulsion.

"Of past attempts to bring the contents of the alimentary canal under the influence of disinfection," says Dr. Walker, "little need be mentioned here beyond the fact that of the long array of chemical reagents and other substances put forward from time to time in the hope of solving the problem all have failed in one or more respects to fulfill the requirements essential to the successful action of an intestinal disinfectant."

"Recent research has brought to light a chemical product which fills all requirements. This, with the introduction of the 'duodenal enema' of Dr. E. H. McDonald and, at his suggestion, the application of the new product by this method, makes disinfection of the intestinal canal at once possible."

HOUSING POULTRY.

Remember that most cases of colds and roup are incurred in the fall because birds are not housed as early as they should be. Poultry are timid in new quarters and are prone to crowd and huddle together on the roosts and drop boards. In this way they become overheated at night only to be chilled when they separate in the morning. It is an excellent plan, therefore, to house a few at first and as soon they feel at home add a few more until the pen has reached its capacity.

It is an accepted fact that any change in location affects the laying stock. Therefore in order to induce early laying the pullets should be put in permanent winter quarters two or three weeks before they are expected to mature.—A. C. Smith, Poultryman, Minnesota Experiment Station.

A Means of Approach.

Though I am not a smoker I like to carry matches in my pocket. One is always liable to be accosted on the street by some one in need of a light. To be able to give a match is a great luxury. It forms the basis for a momentary friendship.—Atlantic Monthly.

An Episode of Travel

By MARTHA V. MONROE

Marriage in Europe has always been brought about in different ways from those prevailing in America. With us the great bulk of the marriages are made for love; in Europe they are largely arranged by the parents. With us the bride is not expected to have a stated dowry; in Europe the amount must not only be fixed, but settled upon the bride before marriage. In America there are no marriage brokers, or, at least, there is no such institution; in Europe there are places, notably Geneva, where most of the marriages are brought about by this craft.

Jim Wilson, a young American, finding himself in a place where such was the prevailing custom, was much interested in it. Jim was one of those fellows who are not content with observing odd ways, but must try them. He went to a marriage broker and gave him an order for a wife. Not that he expected to marry; his purpose was to experience a case of wife negotiation. The broker told him that the man was expected to deposit sufficient money to pay all expenses; that when introduced to a lady, the object being matrimony, he might, after seeing her, withdraw, and she had the same privilege.

All classes availed themselves of the brokerage system, from the highest down to those who could not afford the expense. Jim was introduced to the daughter of a colonel in the army. He found a very ladylike and a very comely young person who received him, ignoring the purpose of the meeting entirely, but chatting with him frankly and with charming manner.

Jim could not understand how a girl of her refinement could depend upon a broker to find her a husband, and yet he knew that in the place where she lived such was considered about the only process by which girls could find husbands. He felt ashamed of himself for entering upon the matter since he had done so merely from curiosity.

Thinking that the best way out of the matter was to withdraw at once he told his broker to say to the lady that he had decided that marriages between different nationalities were not likely to be happy and if he married he would mate with one of his own countrymen. He had been told that it was the privilege of either party to withdraw and felt no compunction at doing so.

One day while walking in a park where a military band was playing as people promenaded or sat about in groups, he came upon the young lady he had met for the purpose of gratifying his matrimonial curiosity sitting at a table with her father, who was sipping wine and smoking cigarettes. He expected to be recognized, if at all, with reserve, perhaps embarrassment. To his surprise she bowed to him with a smile. He did the proper thing by advancing and expressing himself charmed to meet her again. Her father, the colonel, rose, bowed very low and invited him to take a seat and partake of a liter of wine.

Jim was immensely pleased. After all, the matrimonial brokerage custom was not so bad. At any rate, here was a girl who had the good sense to consider the preliminaries in the light of a business transaction and not feel hurt that he had not proceeded in the affair. He chatted with her for some time, when her father took her away giving him a cordial invitation to call upon them.

Jim was much pleased to make a pleasant acquaintance in this peculiar manner. When he reached home it would be one of the episodes of travel to tell his friends. He determined to accept the invitation for once at least and within a few days made the call. The lady, though as modest as before, seemed to feel a greater freedom that the matrimonial business was no longer between them. Contrary to European customs, he was left alone with her and when he departed felt that he had spent one of the most delightful evenings of his life.

Three weeks from that evening he left the lady again feeling that for him the bottom had dropped out of the universe. He had fallen desperately in love with the lady he had declined to marry and proposed to her. She had refused him, giving him to understand that she would not marry a foreigner and on no account an American.

If Mr. Wilson had any curiosity it was to know why she had received him cordially at first as a suitor and now that he was ready to complete what the broker had begun would not accept him. He knew that her father had nothing but his pay in the army and had felt certain that the marriage on that account alone might have been arranged. He concluded to go to the broker who had introduced him with a view to learning what had happened about the change. That person said to him:

"Monsieur, the lady could not be expected to meet with a refusal on your part to marry her. She has punished you for that."

"But," said Jim, "I thought you said that after one of your introductions of other parties is at liberty to withdraw."

"So I did, but this is the business part of it—a woman is privileged to take another view of it, and in this case mademoiselle was evidently of fended."

Jim went back to America with a broken heart. He does not tell of his adventure as one of the episodes of his tour abroad.
